“Many years ago and straight out of graduate school, I was hired as Executive Director of the Association of Community Arts Councils of Kansas and was lucky enough to work with rural arts councils throughout the state and to see first-hand how groups of (mostly) women encouraged culture on the Plains. From there, I went on to work for the National Endowment for the Arts as Regional Representative, eventually serving a territory that stretched over the Dateline, over the Equator, and over the Arctic Circle. For a Kansas girl, the culture and the scenery were most seductive – and made me appreciate my own pioneer heritage all the more.
